CONTENTS

Description	Page no.
CERTIFICATE	ii
CANDIDATE'S DECLARATION	iii
ABSTRACT	iv-vii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT	viii-ix
CONTENTS	x-xiv
LIST OF FIGURES	xv
LIST OF TABLES	xvi
LIST OF CHART	xvii
LIST OF PUBLICATIONS	xix
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	xx
CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION	1-42

1.1. Models of Stress

1.1.1. General adaption syndrome (GAS) model

1.1.1.1. Alarm stage

1.1.1.2. Resistance stage

1.1.1.3. Exhaustion stage

1.1.2. Stimulus based models

1.1.3. Transactional model of stress

1.2. Source of Stress

1.3. Type of Stress

1.3.1. Hypo stress

1.3.2. Stimulating side of stress

1.3.3. Hyper stress

1.3.4. Pain

1.4. Symptoms of Stress

1.4.1. Physiological functions

1.4.2. Physiological symptoms

1.4.3. Behavioral symptoms and effect

1.5. Effect of Stress

1.5.1. Effect of stress

1.5.2. Performance under stress

1.5.3. Performance development through stress

1.6. Remedial Measures

1.7. Occupational Stress

1.8. Theories on Occupational Stress

1.8.1. Person- Environment Fit theory (P- E Fit theory)

1.8.2. Job Demand- Control (Support) Theory

1.8.3. Effort- Reward imbalance model (ERI model)

1.8.4. Transactional model

1.9. Work Performance

1.9.1. Task Performance

1.9.2. Contextual performance

1.9.3. Differences between task performance and contextual performance

1.9.4. Relationship between task performance and contextual performanc

1.9.5. Counterproductive work behavior

1.10. Theories on Work Performance

1.10.1. Performance pathway model

1.10.1.1. Persons

1.10.1.2. Job demands

1.10.1.3.Training and development

1.10.1.4. Behavior

1.10.1.5. Performance

1.11. Work Motivation

1.12. Theories on Work Motivation

1.12.1. Need-based theories

1.12.1.1. Maslow's hierarchy of needs

1.12.1.2. ERG theory
1.12.1.3. Need for achievement
1.12.2. Cognitive process theories
1.12.2.1. Equity theory
1.12.2.2 The Expectancy theory
1.12.2.3. Goal-setting theory
1.12.2.4. Social cognitive theory
1.12.3. Behavioral theory
1.12.4. Job-based theories
1.12.4.1. Motivation-Hygiene two factor theory
1.12.4.2 Job characteristic theory
1.12.5. Self-regulation theory
1.12.6. Work engagement theory
1.13. Characteristics of a Teacher
1.13.1. Loyal
1.13.2. Introduce national service's spirit
1.13.3. Obey one's ancient guru
1.13.4. Avoid idleness
1.13.5. Consider all colleagues as true peers
1.13.6. Ego free
1.13.7. Have faith in truth
1.13.8. Duty awareness
1.13.9. Have faith in democracy
1.13.10. Love with students
1.13.11. Set up a relationship between society and school
1.13.12. High degree of adaptability
1.13.13. Free from fears
1.13.14. Consistency between practice and theory
1.14 Occupation Stress Across the Educators
1.14.1. The Indian education sector and stress
1.15. Occupational Health of Woman
1.16. Women Employees of Punjab
CHAPTER 2: REVIEW OF LITERATURE 42-59

2.1. Occupational Stress

2.2. (Work) Job Performance

2.3. Work Motivation

CHAPTER 3: Plan of Work and Research Envisaged 60-67

3.1. Statement of the Problem

3.2. Plan of Work

3.2.1. Selection of the research domain

3.2.2. Exhaustive literature review

3.2.3. Identification of research gap/need of the study

3.2.4. Selecting the research locale

3.2.5. Setting up of the aims and objectives of the study

3.2.6. Formulation of appropriate hypotheses

3.2.7. Defining scope and significance of the study

3.2.8. Ascertaining limitations of the study

3.2.9. Selection and application of appropriate methodology

3.2.9.1. Sample

3.2.9.2. Measures/Tools used

3.2.9.3. Ethical considerations

3.2.9.4. Procedure

3.2.9.5. Statistical analyses

3.2.9.6. Interpretation and discussion of results

3.2.9.7. Summary, conclusions and recommendations

CHAPTER 4: Methodology 68-82

4.1 Sample

4.1.1. Determination of the sample size

4.1.2. The Sampling Frame

4.1.3. Inclusion criteria

4.1.4. Exclusion criteria

4.1.5. Sampling Methodology

4.1.6. Final Sample included in the Study

4.2. Measures/Tools Used

4.3. Ethical Considerations

4.4. Procedure

4.5. Analyses

CHAPTER 5: Results and Discussion 83-128

5.1. Reliability of the Measures

5.2. Mean and Standard Deviation

5.3. Normality

5.4. Correlational Analyses (N=300, Women School Teachers)

5.5. Stepwise Multiple Regression Analyses (N=300, Women School Teachers)

5.6. Structured in-depth interviews (Women school teachers, N=75)

CHAPTER 6: Summary and Conclusions 129-137

6.1. Summary

6.2. Conclusions

6.3. Suggestive Recommendations

6.4. Future Prospects

REFERENCES 137-169